Chi-Ka

Dubai is an unlikely place to find a kimono shop but its founders, Nemanja and Nina Valjarevic, have identified a close parallel in both form and cultural function between traditional Japanese dress and the abayas worn by Gulf women. The couple have art-world backgrounds and see the kimonos as canvases for creative expression; each is hand-painted or -embroidered. Chi-Ka also offers hybrid kimono-abayas, mainly black in the local tradition, but featuring swathes of floral designs between the knee and hem. All pieces are one-offs, with the most elaborate taking several months to produce (from AED6,500). The garments are hung like large-scale paintings in the double-height gallery, and the space hosts a roster of exhibitions and performances. Unit 69, Alserkal Avenue, T 050 744 5911, www.chikaspace.com
